Grand Opening for OTN Development

A training facility built to sharpen the skills of ballplayers of all ages invites the public to tour its specialized facility at the Eastwood Mall Complex, in Niles, Ohio. OTN Development will proudly celebrate its Grand Opening August 28-30. OTN Development quietly opened in the dome adjacent to the Eastwood Expo Center in January 2009. Now all phases of its high-tech facility are fully operational.

From 2-9PM on Friday, 11AM-7PM Saturday and 11-9PM Sunday, baseball and softball players are invited to try out the agility course, test their throwing speed in the radar booth, and receive a free computer motion analysis. There will be free giveaways of balls, bats, gloves and other equipment. Discounts are available for future lessons and speed and strength analysis.

Founder Jim Devine explains “our program is designed to help every player, from number One-To-Nine on the roster, hence the name OTN.” The training center employs the latest in video analysis technology to teach players proper body mechanics, and eliminate the bad habits that put them at risk of injury. The methodology promises to improve the performance of players at every skill level. OTN Development (formerly known as Swinglab) has been training players ages 6-Adult since 2002 at its original location in Warren, Ohio. The new, more spacious new location accommodates up to 30 players at a time, and offers an adjustable-size infield for full-team training.

The training staff has trained hundreds of young ballplayers, more than 30 of whom are now playing with professional teams in North American and European leagues.
